CATTLE SLAIN AFTER BEING BITTEN BY DOG

Berwick Township Man Loses 4 Head After Rabies Develop.

DOG KILLS 16 HEAD OF SHEEP

Four head of cattle had to be slain Monday afternoon when they developed rabies on the farm of Newton Orndorff, Berwick township, between Abbottstown and East Berlin, after being bitten three weeks ago by a mad dog. The orders to slay the cattle were given by Dr. George Muntz, state bureau of animal industry, after an investigation had been made by George A. Raffensperger, state field agent for the bureau.

The loss of the cattle, valued at $160, which will be paid by the state, climaxes two weeks of depredations upon cattle and sheep in Adams county by dogs, the total loss being 5 cattle, a dog and 16 sheep.

Neighbor Saw Attack

A. W. Waldeman, a neighbor of Orndorff, saw the attack being made on the cattle in the open field three weeks ago. The cattle were grazing when a dog ran from undergrowth edging the field and attacked the three heifers and bull without warning.

Waldeman obtained a gun and tried to drive the dog away while the cattle, badly frightened, tried to flee from the maddened animal. Waldeman fired at the dog nine times, but failed to hit him, the canine finally turning on him. The farmer fled to a tree and climbed to safety until the dog turned away.

Bit Cat and Dog

In addition to attacking the cattle the dog also attacked a cat and a dog owned by Waldeman, both of which had to be shot. No trace of the attacking canine has been found. Raffensperger declaring the belief that the animal slunk away into the Pigeon hills after the attack and lay down to die.

"When the cattle began showing signs of the rabies," Raffensperger said, "I referred the matter to the state and Dr. Muntz ordered the cattle killed. All of them were fine animals."

Kills Marauder

A long rifle shot fired by Preston Baumgardner, Liberty township, early Monday morning ended the career of terrorism that a police dog turned wolf had led for several months in that section. The dog during that time is believed to have been responsible for the death of sixteen sheep and the injury of two more on three farms in Liberty township.

E. S. Baumgardner, father of the youth who killed the dog, lost one, John Linn, a neighbor, lost twelve head, and F. M. Musselman, another neighbor, had three killed and two severely injured by the attacking canine.

Early Monday, the youth heard the dog outside his home and crawling out of bed he pulled on a pair of trousers, took up a rifle and hurried out of the house in his barefeet. Across the fields in the dim early morning light, he saw the dog attempting to flee. He took aim and fired, killing the dog in its tracks.

Crossed Mountains

It was identified by Raffensperger as being the property of W. R. Sprengle. Waynesboro R. D. 1, who told the authorities his dog had left his home last February and had not been seen since. Raffensperger declared that the dog had crossed the mountains and had been making nightly sorties against the sheep in Liberty township.

A pack of dogs attacked a heifer on the farm of Charles Hershey, McKnightstown, late last week and so badly injured the animal it had to be slain. Raffensperger shot one of the dogs in the pack.

AUTOS CRASH; NO ONE HURT

One Car Completely Demolished When It Hits Wall.

A roadster, driven by Harry Kleckner, Chicago, and a truck, operated by R. M. King, Orrtanna, collided on the Lincoln Highway at Kane's store, two miles west of Cashtown, Monday afternoon. After the two machines went together, the roadster skidded from the highway and crashed into a concrete retaining wall in front of Mr. Kane's residence.

No one was hurt. The roadster was damaged to the extent of $300. According to Corporal Ray Schwartz, of the local sub-station of the state highway motor patrol, who investigated, King said he slowed down his truck from 25 to 10 miles an hour and held out his hand to signal for a left-hand turn from the highway.

Kleckner, according to the officer, said he also slowed down, sounded his horn twice and started to pass the truck when it suddenly turned over in front of him.

Damage to the truck amounted to about $30. The roadster had to be towed away from the scene of the accident.

Thomas Tells of Organization Of Bank Affiliate Company

Organization and operation of bank affiliates were discussed in detail by Edmund W. Thomas, president of the First National bank of Gettysburg, at the weekly dinner meeting of the Rotary club at the Eagle hotel, Monday evening. During the course of his address, Mr. Thomas outlined the organization and operation of the securities corporation of the First National bank here, recently organized as an affiliate of the local banking institution.

The first securities company was that of the First National bank of New York city, which was organized in 1908, and since then many other banks have launched out into the securities field, among them being the National City company, the affiliate of the National City bank, New York; the Chase securities company, affiliated with the Chase National bank, and the First Securities company of the First National bank of Boston.

The securities companies, he said, were organized to meet the changing needs of the times, replacing bond departments in many instances. The affiliates, he added, have greater possibilities for profits for the banks' stockholders.

The securities companies operate either on the fixed income from investments, on the trading plan, or both, the speaker said. A good portfolio for the securities company should include stocks of railroads, utilities, banks, investment trusts and high-grade industrials, Mr. Thomas said.

'Billy', Pheasant-Mascot At Airport, Dies and Pilots Mourn Demise

"Billy" the air-minded pheasant-mascot of the Gettysburg airport, is dead. He was found dead Monday morning by Chief Pilot Paul Charles. His body was found about 4 feet in front of the hangar.

"Billy", aged about two years, judging from the length of his spurs, had been mascot at the airport for about a year. He was first noticed scampering across the center runway after a ship taking off. Later he became tamer and would approach the hangar. Then he ate out of Pilot Charles' hands. From then on "Billy" was a fixture.

WOULD FOLLOW SHIPS

When a plane landed or took off "Billy" hot-footed it after the ship, crowing loudly when the ship left the ground or taxied to the port.

Pilots from distant points knew "Billy". On Sunday a New York plane dropped down at the local port and inquired of the pheasant-mascot. A moment later "Billy" was on the job.

Monday morning "Billy" failed to put in an appearance. A careful search of the port revealed his body stretched out about 40 feet in front of the large hangar. The cause of "Billy's" death is a matter of conjecture.

DEATH IS MYSTERY

Some are of the belief that he ran himself to death chasing planes. Others believe that because he inhaled so much dust and fumes from the exhaust pipes of the planes' motors that he gradually suffocated.

Thieves Break Into 2 York Street Apartments At Mid-day; Take $800

Miss Mable Grenoble Loses Diamond Ring Valued At $500 And Other Jewelry Worth Several Hundred Dollars More; Angelo Camberis Also Victim Of Burglars.

MARAUDERS RANSACK ROOMS IN EFFORTS TO FIND VALUABLES

Jewelry valued in excess of $800 was stolen from two apartments on the fourth floor of the Sachs apartment building, York street, by a thief who ransacked the places between 11:20 a. m. and 2:15 p. m., Monday. The apartments entered were those occupied by Miss Mabel Grenoble and Angelo Camberis.

Miss Grenoble was the heavier loser. From a jewel case in a dresser drawer, the robber took a diamond ring, valued at $500; a diamond bar pin, worth $150; a crescent pin, set with pearls, a blood stone and diamond ring and a gold signet ring.

Mr. Camberis' loss amounted to about $40. He had a silver belt buckle, a fountain pen and some other small trinkets of jewelry stolen.

Mr. Camberis Discovers Loss

The burglaries were discovered by Mr. Camberis, proprietor of the Plaza restaurant, shortly after 2 o'clock Monday afternoon, when he went to his apartment to take a bath. He found the door of his apartment locked, but when he entered the place was topsy-turvy.

He notified Miss Grenoble, who is employed at Penrose Myers' jewelry store, Baltimore street, and she found her apartment in more disorder than her neighbor's.

URGES TOWNS TO END DANGERS

Sees Hazard In High Hedges At Road Intersections.

An appeal to local property owners and police authorities to co-operate in a safety movement of utmost importance to motorists is made by the Keystone Automobile club.

Pointing to the hazard of road and street intersections screened by high hedges and trees, the club urges upon owners of property the necessity of trimming the foliage so as to afford a view of the roadway by approaching drivers.

"Many accidents occur every summer at road crossings where the view is obstructed," said Edward P. Curran, safety director of the club, "and our investigation covering the state indicates that conditions are particularly dangerous at this time. Countless intersections are screened by high growths, making it impossible for motorists to see cars on the intersecting highway until they have actually entered the intersection."

"A danger not readily appreciated by local authorities is the presence on the highways of thousands of motorists unfamiliar with local conditions. In many cases they are unaware of the existence of a cross road until they are upon it. Even the most careful driving by local motorists is apt to go for naught if they are unable to see around the corner and 'nose' their cars into the intersection at the moment a stranger, unaware of the danger, approaches at a fast rate."

"By trimming hedges and removing obstructions, property owners will be contributing greatly to the safety of the highways. Incidentally, they will at the same time improve the appearance of their property."

Chicago, June 3.—Good old summer weather has been here for four days now, and Chicago, as is its wont during the warm days, is craving beer.

The gangsters and gunmen, in whose hands the liquor trade has started hereabouts for ten years, rested to line up the country and lake shore resort business just before Decoration Day in anticipation of a big season. But the "booze treaty" between the big racketeers, which divides up Chicago, doesn't apply to vacation spots, so war has broken out again.

The toll at this time of writing since Saturday is eight dead, two near death and four others wounded.

Gnoffo First to Fall

The first to fall was Philip Gnoffo, who was killed Saturday afternoon as machine gunners riddled his automobile at Eighteenth street and Peoria avenue, a busy intersection. Gnoffo had just come into the city with James Genna, last of the once powerful gang of extortioners and liquor peddlers, which was led by four Genna brothers. The three others have been killed and James fled to Italy only to return for the purpose of re-organizing and "muscling in" on the beer trade.

Two of Gnoffo's companions, Guile Carmelo and Joe Fannanco, were wounded. Their assailants got away after adding a 14-year-old boy, who was standing near by, to their victims. The youth was hit in both legs.

Fox Lake Massacre Next

Next came the Fox Lake massacre, comparing only in blood-thirstiness with the famous St. Valentine's Day slaughter of 1929 when seven of George (Bugs) Moran's North Side liquor racketeers were lined up against a garage wall and machine-gunned to death. The blame for the Moran onslaught has been laid to the Al Capone South Side gang, but nobody so far has been brought to account.

BROTHERS ON TRIAL TODAY

Bomb Outrage Will Be Aired By Sixty Witnesses.

Rockville, Md., June 3.—Herman and Leroy Brady, brothers, charged with the murder of Herman's wife, were brought here Monday from Upper Marlboro, Prince George's county, and lodge in the Montgomery county jail.

The brothers went on trial this morning, charged with the killing of Mrs. Naomi Hall Brady, the 19-year-old wife of Herman. The trial was moved from Prince George's county when defense counsel sought and obtained a change of venue. Scores of residents of Prince George's county plan to come here to attend the trial.

Rockville Is Placid

Rockville went placidly about its business Monday on the eve of what promises to be one of the most unusual trials ever held in Maryland. Fifty taxmen have been summoned for possible jury duty and they are the most excited residents of Montgomery county, as far as the trial is concerned.

Attorneys on both sides marked time during Monday, making last-minute preparations for the trial. There are more than sixty prosecution witnesses already summoned and the defense has sent out notices to more than twenty-five.

The contribution of the local guild to the program of the evening comprised a vocal duet, "The Beautiful Garden of Prayer", by the Misses Stine and Lupp.

MARRIAGE LICENSES
A marriage license was issued by W. A. Geiselman, clerk of the courts, Monday afternoon, to Archie W. Fox, Kensington, Maryland, and Miss Loraine Locker, Gordonsville, Virginia.

15 HELD IN FRAUD
Wilkes-Barre, June 3 (AP).—Arrested on bench warrants charging conspiracy and fraud in the handling of public contracts in Luzerne county, 15 defendants including the three county "commissioners" gave bail in court here Monday. They were allowed their liberty and the cases will be submitted to a special grand jury on Thursday.

Magician Reaches for Ballot, Gets Rabbit, Canary, Flowers

Chicago, June 3 (AP).—The way magicians in national convention elect officers is, as might be guessed, tricky.

The election of the Society of American Magicians was held Monday. Each voter was obliged to roll up his sleeves, remove his hat, and mark his ballot with the same pencil on an especially prepared piece of paper cut into 350 pieces, each numbered. Each voter likewise was compelled to take a strange oath not to tamper with the emblematic ballot box.

Strange Procedure
Theo Hardeen, retiring president, reached for the first ballot. He drew out a rabbit. In went his hand again, and out came a lighted candle. Then a pair of handcuffs, glass of water, a Japanese lantern, a canary, a petunia in a flower pot, yards of ribbon and finally a stein of an amber fluid. This might have gone on indefinitely, but others wanted to vote.

Finally John Mulholland called to the tellers to cease the count. "I can read the ballots," he said, "and they show the convention unanimously in favor of James Wobensmith, Philadelphia, for president."

Some one shouted for a recount, but the ballot-box had disappeared. The convention closed last night.

CHIEF JUSTICE HUGHES TO ATTEND UNVEILING

Frederick—H. Dorsey Etchison, president of the Roger Brooke Taney Memorial Association, announced Saturday that Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, of the Supreme Court of the United States, will be the orator at the unveiling of the proposed memorial to Chief Justice Taney to be placed in Court House Park which will take place in September of next year, the time convenient to Chief Justice Hughes.

It was the thought some months ago of the members of the Taney association to have the event take place during September of the present year, but when Mr. Etchison visited Chief Justice Hughes in Washington on Thursday last, it was impossible for the chief justice to accept the invitation tendered him unless the unveiling would be held in September, 1931.

MAN FALLS OVER DEAD ON HIS WAY TO BANK

Waynesboro—Seized with a heart attack while walking along West Main street shortly before 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon Jacob F. Mentzer, well known stone mason, died a few minutes later while being taken to the Waynesboro hospital.

Mr. Mentzer had just left his wife at their home and said he was "going to the bank and pay his men." He was walking alone at the time. Persons who saw Mr. Mentzer fall, went to his aid.

DRIVES WITH BAD TIRE; UPSETS, AND IS KILLED

Frederick—Homer Stocks, aged 38, a farm laborer of near Lucketts, Virginia, was killed instantly when the machine which he was driving overturned a few miles south of Poolesville about 8 o'clock Saturday morning. He was unaccompanied, a companion whom he had picked up along the road having left the car a few minutes earlier to summon aid in repairing a tire of the automobile, which had gone flat.

It was presumed that Stocks became tired of waiting, and being without tools to mend the tire, continued on his way to the ferry. Near the top of a hill a few hundred yards further, it is believed heaved that the flat tire caused the car to skid, overturning and rolling down a bank. A fractured skull was the only mark of injury found on the dead man's body when his companion arrived a few minutes later.

VETERAN RECALLS DAYS HE SPENT IN PRISON

Waynesboro—Waynesboro's oldest civil war veteran, George S. Heck, 120 Snider avenue, still recalls the period he served as a member of the 126th Pennsylvania Infantry, Company A, and of his 20 months imprisonment in southern prisons.

Mr. Heck is 90 years old, having been born in Chambersburg August 11, 1839. Despite an injury received in a fall over a year ago while coming from church, he is in good physical condition and his mind is unusually active for a man of his age.

Volunteering in the service of the northern forces in August, 1862, Mr. Heck saw service for nine months, the biggest engagements in which he took part being at Fredericksburg and Chancellorsville. Being mustered out of the service in May of 1863, Mr. Heck was returning north when a group of General Robert E. Lee's southern forces picked him up near Hagerstown.

GIRL INJURED WHEN HIT BY AUTOMOBILE

Hanover—Sylvia Gradman, five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Gradman, is confined to the Hanover General hospital suffering from injuries which she sustained Friday night when she was struck by a car driven by Clester L. Reinicker, as she darted into the path of the east bound car from behind two parked cars. The accident occurred near her home on Broadway.

It was at first believed the child had suffered a fractured skull, but an x-ray revealed no such injury. She is suffering from severe contusions, minor abrasions, and probable internal injuries.

BALTIMORE DRIVER BADLY HURT SUNDAY

York—Frank Strate, 26 years old, Baltimore, is in the York hospital in a critical condition from injuries he received shortly after 6:30 o'clock Sunday night, when the car he was driving left the road and crashed into a house along the Susquehanna Trail at the southern end of Loganville.

He is suffering from a compression and compound fracture of the chest walls, a puncture of the left lung the size of a silver dollar, besides a number of lacerations of the body.

Italian Sets New Endurance Record
Rome, June 3 (AP).—The world non-refueling endurance record was brought to Italy by Umberto Manalena, who in 1928 first sighted General Noble and the Italia survivors on the ice north of Spitzbergen.

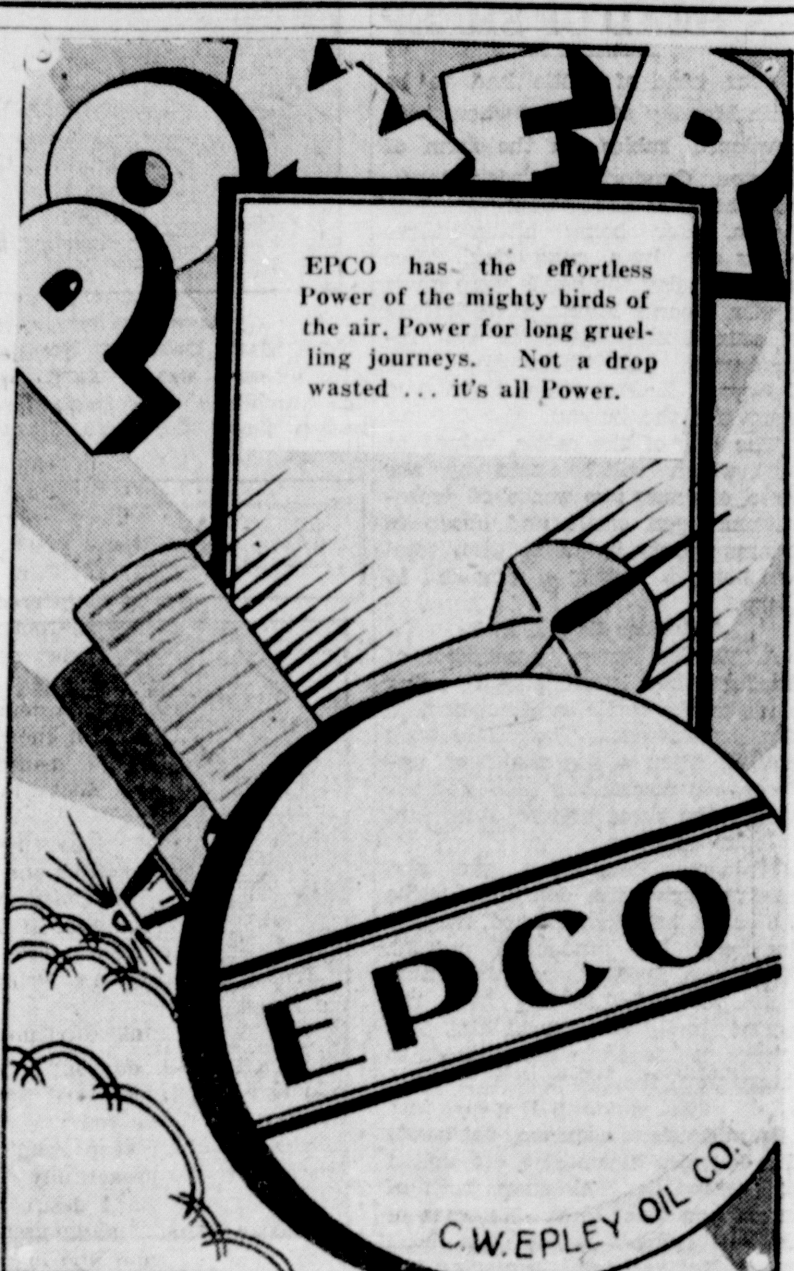

He and his companion, Lieutenant Ciccone, exceeded by one hour and 49 minutes the previous record of 65 hours and 25 minutes held in Germany.

Murder at High Tide

By CHARLES G. BOOTH

SYNOPSIS: Anatole Flaque's cleverness finally forces Mrs. Dan Parados to tell how she plotted so her husband would be murdered. She concluded he really was Jules Lacote, a French criminal who had betrayed Ciceron Bec and le Balafre, convicts who later escaped from prison. To disclose Parados' whereabouts, she inserted advertisements in French newspapers, hoping Bec and le Balafre would see them and come to kill Parados in revenge. The hated, tyrannical Parados had humiliated his wife, Flaque alleges, by giving her a cheap pendant as a gift. He died with its price tag in his hand. Mrs. Parados, however, declares she found him dead, that someone else had shot him a moment before.

Chapter 32

WHERE IS CAROLINE

Mrs. Parados shut her eyes as Flaque stopped. I found myself drawing a breath of relief. Flaque lived for the dramatic, I believe.

Kirk retrieved his hat, which he had dropped and Samuels touched a match to his cigar, which had gone out several minutes before.

When Mrs. Parados opened her eyes their calmness astonished me. Miss Jahries at that instant came to Mrs. Parados' side and took her hand, and I realized that they had met on the level of a common experience.

"The pendant is mine," Mrs. Parados said quietly. "Dan gave it to me. It was the unbearable humiliation, as you said. It made me crazy. I did rush down the outside stair. And he clutched at the pendant and broke off the tag. But I did not kill him. He was standing in the window and he fell back into the room before I got to him."

"Someone had shot him. I don't know who it was. But I was terrified. It had been in my heart to do him an injury, to kill him, if I could, perhaps, and I lost my head completely. That was why I didn't announce what had happened. Afterwards, when my first terror had passed, I realized what I ought to have done. It was too late, then."

"Everybody knew how I hated Dan and I could not speak without throwing suspicion on myself. I stamped the pendant into the sail beneath the coprosma. I didn't know what else to do with it. When I got upstairs again I looked back and saw Mr. Annersley slip into the library and shut the patio window behind him. I thought he had shot Dan, but you say he couldn't have. There, I have told you everything. You don't believe me, of course."

I didn't know whether we did or not. At first, I had been sure that Mrs. Parados was guilty. Now I wasn't so sure. Too many elements had to be taken into consideration. The weapon, for instance.

Then there was Grainger's death. If she had killed Parados, she had killed Grainger, but Flaque had not said anything about that. Flaque would give us our cue, but Flaque, as usual, was taking his time about it.

"Well, what's the answer?" Samuels demanded impatiently. Flaque had been meditating. "Madame has told us her little mystery," he said briskly. "Clearly, she did not kill monsieur, her husband."

"You do believe me!" Mrs. Parados sobbed thankfully, clasping her hands.

"I believe that madame did not fire those shots," Flaque said coldly. "But must I remind her that the—um—indirect responsibility is hers?"

"You refer to those advertisements?" Samuels asked sharply. "Mais oui. Did they not bring M. Parados and that poor Granger to their deaths?"

"You know that?" Samuels shouted. "You are sure?"

"Would I have said so, if it were not so?" Flaque inquired, twirling his mustache. "Are you telling me that le Balafre and Bec killed Parados and Grainger?" Samuels swept on. "How do you know? Do you know? Can you prove it? Do you know where they are? Can you take me to them?"

Flaque lifted his plump hands in protest. "I implore a favor, mon ami. Grant me half an hour. Then shall I tell you what you desire to know?"

Samuels gave him a long look. "All right," he muttered. "I hope you are not bluffing."

"Monsieur shall have the glory," Flaque said, bowing. "Flaque's attitude struck me as being unnecessary and deliberately confusing. He had implied that le Balafre and Bec had killed Parados and Grainger, but he had not actually said so; moreover, the evidence he had declared to be significant—his 'living tissue'—did not appear to connect them with either crime."

On the other hand, his evidence did not appear to implicate any one else. I thought that Samuels was showing a good deal of patience. Flaque must have divined what was going on in my mind, for he turned to me with a twinkle.

"The little mademoiselle—where they cannot first burn the iron of their hatred into the body of Jules Lacote. I know le Balafre and Ciceron Bec."

"Ahe! they here—on the island?" I cried. "Do you know they are here?"

"I shall tell you something," he said. "A letter from the French consul at Los Angeles was brought to me this afternoon. It told me that le Balafre and Ciceron Bec were as far north as Ensenada four days ago—"

"That would be last Wednesday!" Samuel ejaculated. "Ensenada isn't more than 150 miles south of here. They'd do it in six hours in a fast boat."

"They had a fast boat, monsieur," Flaque continued grimly. "Does not the consul inform me that a launch, a fast one, was stolen in the harbor of Ensenada that Wednesday night? Two rascals beat the owner, carried him off to sea, and put him out in an open boat. He should have died, but he did not. Yesterday he is discovered and today he is able to speak and describe one of those rascals. Messieurs, it is le Balafre, The Scarred One."

Flaque could not resist the temptation to pronounce that sinister name with a flourish. The room became quiet. Horror began to drill at my heart.

"It can't be that," I groaned. "Why should they take Caroline? Lacote is dead. They could have no reason for coming back."

Flaque's arm fell across my shoulder. "Come, we shall find her around the corner, sound and safe. I do not doubt. You ask me what I know and I have told you. But we waste time!"

I was not reassured, but the briskness of his tone helped me. "Miss Brent must be found," Samuels was saying. "Every man on the island will take part in the search. John and Kirk will look after the south side of The Gut. The rest of us had better spread out like a fan. Gridley, you and Hendricks go to the head of The Gut, then continue straight up the slope. Annersley and I will veer off to the right of you. Flaque, you and Lum we go north along the foot of the slope. Hunt, take the short. She may have fallen off the cliff."

We'll all work over to the other side of the island, then back. There's an abandoned village over there somewhere, don't forget. Cover every foot of ground. Use your brains if you meet those birds le Balafre and Bec. Better take what guns you can find."

"We don't intend to stay here doing nothing," Celia announced. "At least, I don't."

"Nor I," Mrs. Parados said. "I couldn't sit still after what I've done. This is all my fault, but I don't need to remind you of that."

"I shall help," Miss Jahries added. Manning merely quivered.

"My orders are that you remain in the house," Samuels told them. "I have enough on my hands now. If you leave the house you do so on your own responsibilities."

Four or five pistols were available. I did not secure one of them. There were enough torches to go around, however. Celia, Mrs. Parados, and Miss Jahries declared their intention of combing the ground immediately beyond the edge of the developed estate in which the house stood.

Manning, afraid to be left alone in the house, attached herself to Miss Jahries.

As I started at a fast clip down the beach by way of one of the cove trails, my head and ears were pounding. I arrived at the beach in a lather of sweat.

Not more than a dozen feet of wet sand divided the breakers from the sandstone cliff. The beach curved and I followed its arc at top speed, coming to the mouth of The Gut, where I stood, drenched with spray and deafened with sound. Hissing water and an unscalable cliff guarded this side of The Gut.

Coming back, I threw my light along the jetty, into the boathouse, and over the Parados cruiser and the police boat, then along the cement breakwater Parados had built halfway across the mouth of the cove.

A shoulder of rock jutted into the surf at the northwest corner of the cove. It took me ten minutes to get around it to the west beach. Once I thought I was trapped. The water was up to my waist, then to my shoulders. It swept me off my feet and hurled me against the cliff. The water receded and I staggered through.

My head throbbed and after I had touched it I found blood on my hand. The wound did not appear to be deep, however, and I started down the beach. Fortunately the torch was not broken.

Turning, I raced back along the beach, playing the light beam upon the face of the cliff with a view to discovering a trail that would take me to the top.

The trail proved steeper than I had expected and halfway up I had to stop, or I would have fallen from exhaustion. I was losing more blood than I had supposed.

I was on the point of starting up again when a beam of light, evidently from an electric torch, shot out over the top of the cliff in a horizontal direction a little to the right of me.

It vanished, reappeared, vanished; again it reappeared and vanished. Each time the light flashed with the regularity of a signal.

So far as I knew everybody had left the house. The women might have returned, but if they had I could conceive of no reason why they should signal out to sea. The land, or to me on the beach—that would have been understandable.

"It looks queer," I muttered. As I pulled myself over the edge of the cliff, the light flashed again—once. A hundred yards south of where I stood was the house. The light had seemed to come from the parapet roof. This time I caught an answering gleam somewhat south of the house and not far off shore.

My first impulse was to approach the roof by way of the outside stair, but I quickly suppressed it. I wanted to see the signaler before he saw me.

Skirting the cypress trees, I made my way to the northwest corner of the house and to the rear door, where I had left my shoes. The door was ajar. I entered, glided across the kitchen to the Decoration Day: The beautiful ceremony of strewing with spring flowers the graves of the fallen heroes of the republic, instituted by their surviving comrades of the Republic, instead of dying out, grows with interest each returning year. In Gettysburg the attendance was very large, estimated from 5,000 to 8,000. The weather was all that could be desired.

FIFTY YEARS AGO

The ceremonies were in charge of Corporal Skelly Post, assisted by their comrades of Burns Post. At 2 p. m. the procession was formed in the center square and marched direct to the National Cemetery. The strewing of the graves with flowers was performed by the comrades, assisted by the school children, who were divided in small bands, each assigned to a particular state. Mr. Calvin Hamilton, the principal of the public school, who is also a member of Skelly Post, was in charge of the school brigade.

At the close of these exercises the crowd moved to the Rostrom on the summit of the cemetery grounds, where the exercises were opened with prayer by Prof. H. Louis Baugher, of Pennsylvania College, followed by the singing by a male choir.

Hon. Charles G. Williams, of Wisconsin, the orator of the day, was then introduced and delivered an eloquent address.

At the close of Mr. Williams' address the Benediction was pronounced by the Rev. R. H. Colburn, of the Methodist E. church.

Local Items: The maximum temperature last week exceeded by ten degrees that of any corresponding date for 55 years.

A grand picnic will be held at Spangler's Spring Wednesday, June 16, for the benefit of the Catholic Parochial School. Dancing, Sack Races, Target Shooting, &c.

Evening Services: By arrangement of the Ministerial Association of this place, the hour for evening services in the churches will be eight o'clock during the three summer months—June, July and August.

Most of the Sabbath Schools will also change from afternoon to morning sessions.

Sergeant N. G. Wilson leaves on Saturday for Dayton, Ohio, as a delegate to the National Encampment, G. A. R., which meets in that place.

Base Ball: A match game of Base Ball was played on Saturday between the "Atlantic" of York, and the "Defiance" of this place, resulting in a victory for the "Defiance," by a score of 23 to 10. Umpire, A. W. Flemming; Scorer, F. H. Flemming. The Defiance are prepared to play any club in York, Adams or Carroll counties.

Jacob A. Kitzmiller leaves today for Michigan, and expects to be gone for a month. Hope he may have a pleasant trip.

On Monday Thomas Winebrenner and son, of Fairfield, while fishing, caught 15 eels and 5 snappers. In one of the large eels 3 hooks were found. Tommy is hard to beat on a fish or hunt.

Married: Burcher—Sprenkle—May 16, by the Rev. J. C. Koller, Jacob Burcher, of Fairfield, to Mrs. Lydia Sprenkle, of Hanover.

Reife—Diehl:—May 27, at the residence of the bride's parents, near New Oxford, by the Rev. Samuel A. Diehl, Morgan D. Reife and Annie E. Diehl, both of this county.

Arnold Gardner, York Springs, has added to new pictures of statuary, costing $130, to the grounds of his handsome residence.

On Monday at the annual election for officers of the Gettysburg Water Company, the old board were unanimously re-elected, viz: Dr. J. A. Swope, D. Kendeheart, Dr. C. Horner, M. Eicheberger, A. D. Buehler.

Decoration Day at Bendersville: The citizens of Bendersville and vicinity held their decoration services on Friday evening, May 28th, in order to enable them to participate in the exercises at Gettysburg. The exercises took place at 4 o'clock and were attended by a large concourse of people from the surrounding country. The procession formed at the Public School House, under the marshaling of Mr. S. E. Wampler, and proceeded to the Cemetery in the following order: Bendersville Band, Sunday School children, citizens, and a detachment of 20 members of Corporal Skelly Post No. 9.

G. A. R., accompanied by ex-soldiers. After reaching the cemetery the programme was as follows: Dead March by Band; prayer by the Rev. I. B. Crist; Hymn by choir of ladies and gentlemen; Grand Army ceremonies and strewing of flowers by G. A. R. and children; Oration by John L. Hill, Jr., Esq.; Music by choir—an appropriate Memorial Selection; Benediction by the Rev. I. B. Crist.

Mr. Hill delivered a very able, eloquent and appropriate address, which was highly commended by his auditors. It had the right ring. The Rev. Moses was to have delivered an address, but not being present his place was supplied by the Rev. I. B. Crist. Mr. Crist is a wounded soldier, and whilst his remarks were brief, they were very touching, especially in his allusions to the service of some of his comrades who are buried in the cemetery, where the services were held.

At Arendtsville: On Friday, the 28th, Arendtsville honored their fallen heroes by the strewing of flowers. The gateway of Greenmount Cemetery was beautifully wreathed with pine and laurel, and the terraced mound in the center was handsomely decorated with flags. The procession was formed by Chief Marshal Jacob Hartzell, with John Bushey and R. A. Lytle as assistants, in the following order: the Arendtsville Cornet Band, the children of the Lutheran and Reformed Sunday Schools, bearing flowers in their hands; the Washington Irving Society connected with the Select School at this place. The society was followed by the delegation from Corporal Skelly Post G. A. R. The procession moved first to Fairview cemetery, where the graves were decorated by the children of the Sunday Schools. It next proceeded to Greenmount, where the graves were strewn by the W. I. S. Here the deputation of the G. A. R. held their beautiful ceremony over the grave of Amos Hoffman, Color Sergeant Co. G, 128th Regiment, who died from wounds received at the Battle of Monocacy. The procession then moved to the church, where the program laid down by the committee of arrangements was carried out, viz: addresses by the Revs. D. M. Blackwelder, of the Lutheran church, and A. J. Heller, of the Reformed church; singing by a Select Choir, led by John Bushey, and music by the Band.

THE BORROWED CHILD

Once there was neighbor who Had an errand she must do, So she brought her little one In to me while she was gone, Asking me to guard the child In her absence. And I smiled; Smiled to think that for the day I could watch a child at play.

Oh the joy, that for a while I could share that happy smile! Hold that wee one to my breast, And be very fearful lest Harm should come to her in play While her mother was away. Very glad was I, indeed, Thus to serve a neighbor's need.

Not for long could she remain, Soon she must go home again, Soon she'd go away from me, And once more I'd childless be. But so lovely and so sweet Was the pater of her feet That I wanted her to stay Longer with me than a day.

Oh you troubled hearts and sad Who have lost the child you had, So it was with you who weep For the joy you couldn't keep, God just placed a baby fair In your tender, loving care For a little while, and then Came and took her home again.

A play will be given by the teacher and pupils of the school in the Calf Ribs neighborhood next Friday night. A large crowd is expected, as all the parents will want to come out and see their child act better than the rest.

Little Jack Rabbit

By David Cory

The Hollyhocks are smiling Along the garden wall. It isn't often Uncle John Finds time to make a call.

For it's miles to Turnip City, A million rabbit hops— And the stagecoach often has no time To make a dozen stops.

"Yes, it's a long ride," remarked

Uncle John Hare, and with a sigh he finished eating the fifth piece of angel cake and sat down his fourth cup of turnip tea. "But it gives me an appetite," he added, with a chuckle. "That's something to be thankful for," and he winked at his bunny nephew opposite, who had scarcely taken his eyes off the nice old gentleman hare.

"What are you looking at?" all of a sudden asked Uncle John. "Is my tie crooked?"

"No," answered the little rabbit. "Well, what are you staring at?" enquired the old hare,—"anything wrong with me?"

"You have smudges on your ears," answered the little rabbit.

"Of course I have—I mean, all hares have black tips on their ears," cried the old gentleman hare, with a sigh of relief.

"Mother hasn't, neither have I," went on the little bunny, doubtfully.

"Of course not," chuckled Uncle John. "You two are rabbits. Only HARES HAVE THESE BLACK MARKS!"

"Dearest me!" cried the little bunny. "I learn something every day. Wonder if I'll live long enough to grow wise."

"You must be more observing," continued the old gentleman hare. "Your feet and mine are very different."

"Yes, your's are bigger," admitted the little bunny.

"Ha, ha!" laughed Uncle John, turning to smile at Lady Love. "I see that I must teach you something about hares. Look at my foot. See how my toes spread apart. Every winter the hair grows out long between them. It's a great help in hopping over the snow—keeps me from breaking in. Why, I don't need snowshoes."

"Neither does Mrs. Grouse," remarked the little bunny. "The skin grows out between her toes in the winter time."

"Yes, she can walk over the snow oven better than I," admitted the old hare. "But how I can run when Danny Fox chases me. It's lucky to have long legs. I never hide. I just dodge behind trees and bushes when he's after me."

"I must always hide," sighed the little bunny. "There are many hollow logs in the Shady Forest and empty woodchuck holes in the meadow."

Little rabbits can't hop as fast as big, long-legged hares," smiled Lady Love, and in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

RENEW PERMITS FOR BUS LINES

Consolidation Foreseen By Commission In Present Trend.

Harrisburg, June 3 (AP).—With the renewing of the public service commission of 625 certificates for operation of buses in Pennsylvania in the five months of this year up to June 1, the number of bus operators in the state is virtually the same as last year, officials of the public service commission said today.

Of the number of certificates which expired on June 1 of this year approximately fifteen operators notified the commission of their intention to discontinue their bus lines. It is expected that a check of the certificates this month will show that a few more have ceased operation without formal notification to the commission.

Trend To Decrease

In discussing the number of renewals officials of the commission's bureau of public convenience, which handles the various applications for new certificates and renewals, said that the number of renewals for this year and last year as compared with previous years showed a trend toward fewer bus operators in the state. Increased competition from private automobile owners and the high insurance costs have led to most of the discontinuances, they said, although, particularly in the western part of the state, there have been several consolidations of existing bus lines under one management.

These officials said that they believed the future would show a more decided trend toward merging of present bus lines with possible consolidation into a few operating companies. However, they were careful to state that the smaller number of renewals within the next few years should not be taken as an indication of this as it will be due to legal procedure.

Once an operator has obtained a certificate from the commission he must, if he wishes to continue operation, renew it every two years for the first four years and thereafter every five years. There will be a number of operators who obtained renewals this year, they said, who will not have their certificates renewed again until June 1, 1935.

Replace Trolleys

Another trend noted by the officials of the bureau of public convenience is the gradual substitution of motor buses for street cars on rural traction company lines. This has been going on for some time, they said, so that now there are comparatively few traction companies operating street cars on rural lines. In place of the rural trolley car system has come the formation of a subsidiary company of the traction company, owned and operated by the stockholders of the traction company, which operates buses over the routes formerly served by the traction company's street cars.

This trend has not been noted in the urban communities and the officials said that their personal opinion is that there will be no change for some time in traction companies operating in cities. The bus is too small and would of necessity be required in such numbers as to make this form of transportation impractical at this time as a substitute for street cars in the cities, they said.

However, they declined to predict any definite transportation trend in cities because of the rapidly with which transportation facilities are now being changed and adapted to meet better the requirements of the traveling public.

Roberts Takes Oath For Supreme Court

Washington, June 3 (AP).—Owen J. Roberts was inducted into office Monday as an associate justice of Supreme court. When he took his oath, the bench had its full number of nine again. Roberts succeeds the late Justice Sanford, of Tennessee.

The courtroom was crowded. Mrs. Roberts and their daughter, and a number of friends came to Washington to be present.

Having taken the constitutional oath in the robing room nearby, Justice Roberts entered the courtroom at the end of the procession of justices headed by Chief Justice Hughes.

Justice Roberts was escorted to his seat at the extreme left of the bench, and the court took up its routine business.

Posses Battle Each Other Hunting Gang

Bellaire, Mich., June 3.—A small army of men and boys laid siege to a farmhouse near here Monday bent upon shooting it out with five bank bandits who they thought had taken refuge there, and after two hours of exchanging shots, it was discovered that there were only two boys in the house and that they were themselves members of the pursuing party.

The strange mixup occurred after Dr. D. R. Gerver, one of the leaders of the bandit hunt, had been shot in the neck by members of his own posse.

The tragic comedy of errors began this morning at Mancelona, where "the bandits held-up" the Mancelona State bank, fleeing with $500 in loose cash.

WIFE KILLED IN LOVE TRIANGLE

Mrs. Maude Lowther (above), 22, housemaid in an Ashtabula, Ohio, home, told officials how Trilly Smith, 26, Ashtabula contractor, plotted with her to slay his 28-year-old wife, who was shot and killed on a road near Ashtabula. Both are held in Jefferson, Ohio, where first degree murder charges were filed against them.

SUNDOWN STORIES

By Mary Graham Bonner

The Little Black Clock had turned the time back and John and Peggy were with the Indians when they were the most important people in the land.

Not only had the Clock turned the time back a good many years but he had turned it back to a winter's day and the Indian boys were taking cold baths.

John had thought he would have liked living in these days but when he saw the Indians taking such very, very cold baths he was not quite so sure of it.

They jumped right into the water which was covered with a thin coating of ice and although they jumped about and squealed and yelled it did not stop them from bathing in this way.

Then others gave themselves a splendid rubbing and cleaning with snow and John felt that was almost too much.

Peggy felt the same way about it, and then to their surprise they saw some of the older Indian children actually playing games in the snow, wearing very few clothes.

The Little Black Clock, as well as John and Peggy, admired the splendid strength of the "Indian boys that they could stand such a great deal of cold, and they watched them play and jump about in the snow.

Then the Clock took them to see some splendid Indian chiefs painting their faces and making themselves very fine for some noble ceremonies which were to take place, and once again John felt that it really would be wonderful to live all the time with the Indians.

They were always doing such interesting things—painting their faces, making wampum, dancing so wildly and racing across the plains and shrieking such fine piercing shrieks!

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEWS ADAMS

THE GOOD AND THE BAD

I HAVE never seen a perfect rose. Or anything else that is perfect. There are too many elements of strife connected with this life for any of us to hope for perfection. But we may all strive for it!

The good in people makes me very much happier than the bad in them. And so I try to look for and hold to the good in my friend. I know that I have in me much that is not good, much that I would have removed from me if it were possible, but I do want to recognize that both the good and the bad are a part of all that I am.

I have no idea why it was that we were all born to absorb both the good and the bad. But all through the facts of life this truth is demonstrated.

I have discovered, however, that whenever we play up our good it attracts and enlarges the good in others. The inspiring writer or worker uplifts all who read his words or who see him work.

Every great enterprise is an example of aspiration that arose from the dream of some man or woman.

When I see the figure of some noted man in bronze I think of only the good in that man. Every day on my way to work I see many of these figures in the public park and I never pass one of them but what I think of some notable thing that he did for the benefit of mankind.

We are all buffeted about. Life is hard at its best. There is nothing easy about living. But there is everything to make it worthwhile, and our daily experiences are all the time telling us that every time we attempt something good we crush that in us which is bad.

How often I think of that great marble work of art by George Gray Barnard called "I Feel Two Natures Struggling Within Me." It is so expressive of every aspiring life.

Stevenson brought out the same idea in "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." The other day I read in my newspaper an article by a noted man who said that we all entertained these two natures within us.

But it is the good in us all that makes the world so beautiful.

In 1918 when the country settled down to the actual business of war the marriage rate fell to 14.4. In 1919 the rate took a sharp rise to 17.6 and in 1920 reached 19.2, the highest ever recorded. This reflected the signing of the armistice with the bright future it predicted and the return of the soldiers to their homes.

"After the post war period of enthusiasm was over the people began to return to normalcy and the marriage rate began to decrease. But, with this decrease the rates fell below those of the pre-war years with the exception of a rate of 17 in 1923. The decline in these years reflected the natural regression from the abnormally high years of 1917, 1919 and 1920 as well as the economic depressions of 1921, 1924 and 1927. The higher standard of living and increased supply of female labor also are responsible for this decline. Since 1926 the unemployment situation has been growing more serious and in Pennsylvania the conditions in the mining regions have been especially acute."

The bureau also stated that the decline in the marriage rate was responsible for part of the decline in the birth rate in the state and placed the remainder of the responsibility on this decline on the later age of marriage thus making impossible the larger families of the past generations.

Capital Wonders If He Will

In view of former Governor Gifford Pinchot's apparent victory in the recent primary election as gubernatorial nominee of the Republican party, employees of the Public Service Commission are speculating on whether Governor Fisher will reappoint Commissioner James S. Benn, of Philadelphia, when his term expires on July 1.

Commissioner Benn is one of the commissioners who was the object of Pinchot's attack when he was governor. He is considered to have the approval of General W. W. Atterbury, but whether Atterbury's espousal of the candidacy of James J. Davis in opposition to Joseph R. Grundy for the Reubian senatorial nomination will have any bearing on Governor Fisher's action is a moot question.

Governor Fisher backed Grundy, whom he appointed to the Senate to fill the vacancy created by the Senate's refusal to seat William S. Vare, and political dopesters at the capitol are at a loss to determine whether Atterbury's action represented a serious breach between him and the governor or whether the governor will reappoint Benn as a move to heal any breach which may exist between him and Atterbury.

While Governor Fisher has stated that he will support Pinchot as the Republican nominee for governor it is uncertain whether this means he will make the remaining appointments of his administration in accordance with the wishes of Mr. Pinchot.

Of the present seven commissioners, three will complete their terms during the next governor's administration. They are J. W. Brown, of Lancaster, on July 1, 1932; Emerson Collins, of Williamsport, on July 1, 1933 and Charles H. Young, New Castle, on July 1, 1931.

Your needs change from year to year. Let us examine your policies and help you.

BRITISH OCCUPY BORDER TOWNS

Descend On Peshawar District Without Warning.

Bombay, June 3 (AP).—In the Peshawar district, beset by a three-fold threat of civil resistance, wild tribesmen and Communism, Britain Monday made the outstanding move in the strategy that is advancing her arms across the map of India.

British troops, without warning to the communities, marched into two villages of the northwest frontier, gateway to the Punjab, Charsadda and Prang. It was "Tommy Atkins" turn to try his hand at stamping out the Reds who for weeks have kept that district in a turmoil and aided the attack of the other two disturbing elements.

They arrested eight leaders and established martial law throughout the areas. Peshawar City itself Monday was quiet, as was most of the rest of India, in nearly every center of which Mahatma Gandhi's "day of silence" was as usual made the order of Monday.

Lisbon (AP).—Compulsory schooling has been introduced in the Portuguese army, 82 per cent of the recruits having been found illiterate.

Rome (AP).—A complaint department for tourists was opened here under government auspices. It will examine and try to adjust all claims and complaints of travelers in Italy.

CRIPPLED BALL HERO HONORED

Rogers Hornsby, the "wounded in action" hero of the Chicago Cubs, received the National League's most valuable player award for the second time. President John Heydler (right) of the National League handed the "Rajah" $1,000 in gold and James Cruisberry presented him with a medal.

DEMOCRATS ASK TARIFF ACTION

See Delay As Having Bad Effect On Business.

Washington, June 3 (AP).—Two Democratic senators, one from the Northwest and the other from New England, joined in a demand in the Senate Monday that speedy disposition be made of the tariff bill in order that business may plan for the future.

Democratic leaders, however, disclaiming any attempt unduly to delay final action, pointed out that the two conference reports materially changed the Senate and House bills and served notice they would be discussed fully. A vote is not expected before the latter part of the week.

As soon as Senator Smoot, Republican, Utah, called up the second report, covering only half a dozen important provisions, including the new flexible clause, Senator Dill, Democrat, Washington, demanded an immediate vote without further debate.

"There is such a thing as the saturation point in Senate debate, and that point has been reached on this bill," Dill asserted, adding that delay only tended to "make conditions worse," and that further discussion would be merely for the purpose of "getting speeches in the record."

General Lord Dies In Capital

Washington, June 3 (AP).—Herbert M. Lord, former director of the budget, died here Monday.

General Lord had been in ill health since his retirement as director of the budget last year. His son, Major Kenneth P. Lord, recently had visited him but had returned to Fort Leavenworth a few days ago. His daughter, Mrs. Frank Van Rensselaer, of Elmira, N. Y., was with him at the end.

General Lord resigned June 1, 1929, announcing he intended to take a position with the firm of Arthur S. Kleiman company, investment brokers, in New York. His health, however, had prevented any extensive participation in business.

President Hoover said he regretted the resignation "intensely," and praised General Lord's work for the government.

General Lord succeeded Charles G. Dawes, now ambassador to Great Britain, as director of the budget in 1922.

Phillies Release Grover Alexander

Philadelphia, June 3 (AP).—Grover Cleveland Alexander, veteran pitcher and one of the greatest in the national league, has probably come to the end of his major league career. Announcement was made today by the Philadelphia national league club that Alexander had been unconditionally released.

Alexander first joined the Phillies in 1911, being drafted from Syracuse. He holds the national league record for victories, having scored 373 triumphs while in the league.

New York, June 3 (AP).—The bulls having failed to stir up any activity left the field to the bears today, but they made even a worse showing. Practically the entire list turned heavy. Despite operations in spots, most losses were limited to a point or two. Trading was in lightest volume since 1928.

HOOVER UNCHANGED

Washington, June 3 (AP).—President Hoover today said that he had not changed his opinion that the Spanish-American veterans pension bill, enacted over his veto yesterday, was unwise.

GRAF DEPARTS ON LAST LAP

Big Dirigible Heads Back Toward Home Port.

(By Associated Press)

Homeward bound, the Graf was speeding east today over the North Atlantic.

She took off from the naval station at Lakehurst at 9:12 last night and 12 hours later was approximately 730 miles due east of New York City.

From 5 a. m. to 9 a. m. she had traveled 350 miles, which would place her speed at 89 miles an hour. It was presumed she was favored by a tail wind as her average cruising speed is around 60 miles an hour.

After soaring over New York and Long Island last night, she headed northeast. Then some time after 5 o'clock she changed her course toward the southeast and Seville, her first stop on her way home to Friedrichshafen.

Lakehurst, N. J., June 3 (AP).—The German dirigible Graf Zeppelin took off at 9:12 o'clock (Eastern standard time) Monday night for Seville, Spain, and Friedrichshafen, Germany, the end of its four-continent flight.

The passengers—eighteen men and four women—were brought to Lakehurst on a train, arriving at 7:09. Of them seven were for Seville, Spain, and the rest for Friedrichshafen, the dirigible's home port and the last stop on the present four-continent two-hemisphere flight.

Passengers Assembled
At 7:10 the siren was blown to summon the ground crew. At that time the passengers were assembled in the welfare building and all their baggage had been put aboard.

As the Graf lay, refueled and repaired, beside its Americanized sister, the Los Angeles, and with two navy biplanes huddled in the corners, 1,000 pounds of food was stowed away for use across the ocean.

There were chicken and beef and veal, bacon and eggs, cereals, ice cream, lettuce, tomatoes and strawberries. It will be an American menu between here and Friedrichshafen, just as it is German when sailing from a German port, or Spanish when taking off from Spain.

Miss Pearl Gardner, York Springs, won high honors at the Shippensburg State Teachers' college from which she was graduated last week. She completed a four-year course, specializing in Latin, history and English. She was graduated from Gettysburg high school in the class of 1924, and has been a teacher in the public schools of Adams county.

Brown To Oppose Martin For Post

Philadelphia, June 3 (AP).—Formal announcement by Van Brown, of Williamsport, of his candidacy for chairman of the Republican state committee with the support of former Governor Gifford Pinchot, was awaited today.

While the Pinchot forces disclosed that Brown is their choice to succeed General Edward Martin in the state chairmanship, the former governor will not make any comments until after Brown issues his statement.

Pinchot, understood to have the aid of Senator Joseph R. Grundy, is busy soliciting pledges of votes of newly-elected state committeemen for Brown.

Mellon and the Philadelphia organization are lined up behind Martin and unless a compromise is effected the contest will not be settled until the committee meets here Saturday morning. Organization leaders say that Martin will be re-elected.

The Pinchot group expresses confidence it will have a half dozen above the necessary 57. Reports still persist that there may be a compromise.

Cannon Declines To Answer Senate

Washington, June 3 (AP).—Bishop James Cannon, Jr., today flatly declined before the Senate lobby committee to answer a question about his political activities in the 1928 presidential campaign.

Sensor Walsh, Montana, in adjourning the committee informed the bishop "of course you will have to take responsibility for declining to answer."

Cannon replied that the committee's investigation "was persecution."

This thrust sent the crowded hearing room into laughter, applause and hisses.

"I cannot help but get the implication in that statement," said Walsh.

Cannon hastily replied "I do not charge you with persecution."

Just previously the bishop had charged that wets and Roman Catholic interests had tried to discredit him. Walsh is a dry and a Catholic.

When Walsh asked Cannon about his 1928 activities, the bishop said, "I am not saying that I am going to refuse to answer, but I want to make a statement."

Walsh said the committee had refused to receive prepared statements.

First Returns On Employment

Harrisburg, June 3 (AP).—Preliminary unemployment returns being made in connection with the 1930 census, show 228,579 in 85 minor civil divisions of Pennsylvania, a total of 32,008 or 14 per cent had declared themselves "out of a job able to work, and looking for work."

This total compiled from the separate returns of various district supervisors, included the figures for Cumberland and Lebanon counties.

Jerusalem (AP).—Prof. Patrick Abercrombie, of Liverpool university, one of England's outstanding town planning authorities, is making a survey of the Haifa Bay region. He came on invitation of the Jewish National fund and the American Palestine Economic corporation.

Stockholm (AP).—The Swedish tobacco monopoly last year netted the government $56,000,000 which was about $6,000,000 more than in the preceding twelve months.

Karlsruhe, Germany (AP).—Storks in unusual numbers have invaded all of Baden. Heidelberg reports the appearance of black storks which for several decades have been seen in this district only rarely.

"KONJOLA GOOD TONIC AS WELL AS A MEDICINE"

Pittsburgh Miss Glad To Tell How New Compound Ended Nervousness.

MISS LORETTA HARRIS

"I am an employee of the Dow Drug Company and having seen so many people buy Konjola and then come back to praise it, I decided to try it myself," said Miss Loretta Harris, 928 North Lincoln Avenue, Northside Pittsburgh. "I took this medicine on account of nervousness and my inability to sleep. I had frequent headaches and was much in need of a tonic."

"I have since taken two bottles of Konjola and have been benefited by it. The headaches are much less frequent and my appetite has increased. I sleep soundly and, best of all, Konjola has restored my nerves to a normal condition. Konjola is a good tonic as well as a medicine."

It is logical to believe that what Konjola has done for others it will do for you—for everyone. Konjola is sold in Gettysburg, Pennsylvania, at Murphy's Cut Rate drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

Alleged Drunken Driver Arrested

C. W. Martin, Hanover, was arrested Thursday evening by State Highway Patrolman Korman, on a charge of operating a car while under the influence of liquor. The information was made before Justice Ennis, West York.

Patrolman Korman had received three complaints of a man driving a car in a reckless manner, on the Lincoln highway, a short distance west of West York. Martin, driving a Nash sedan, was traveling east.

The officer found that Martin was driving from one side of the road to the other, and that traffic traveling in an opposite direction was being run off the road.

Martin, after being placed under arrest, was taken to the York county jail. He later secured bail to appear at a hearing.

TIRED WHEN SHE GOT UP

Strengthened by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

St. Paul, Minn.—"I used to be as tired when I got up in the morning as when I went to bed. I had fainting spells and palpitation. Of course it was my age. I read a Lydia E. Pinkham booklet and started taking the Vegetable Compound three times a day. I am now a well woman. Three of my neighbors know what it did for me so they are taking it too. I will write to any woman if Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help her as it did me. I feel like a young woman now and I thank you."—Miss H. C. Hensy, 286 Fuller Ave., St. Paul, Minnesota.
